I disagree with making high-stakes exit tests because if somebody already pass and take the test and fail they will be mad. My next reason is why did they pass that law and ~~the~~ half of them isn't going to pass anyway. My last reason is I don't think smart should have to take it.

My first reason is somebody already passing and they take the test and fail they will be mad. ~~What's the reason we taking and we already pass.~~ What's the reason we taking and we already pass.

Score Point: 1

This response reflects fundamental deficiencies in persuasive writing skills. The writer clearly disagrees with making exit tests a requirement for graduation. Three key ideas are cited to support this position (students who pass and then fail will be mad, half of the students will not pass, and smart students should not have to take exit tests). Although there is an attempt to organize the response, no information is provided to develop the key ideas. In addition, the response is repetitive and contains serious, persistent writing errors.
